Penn Grant Conference Center at the Pennsylvania Medical Society,
777 E. Park Drive, Harrisburg, PA 17105

Jointly Provided By

Pennsylvania Department of Health and the Global Tuberculosis Institute at Rutgers, The State University of New Jersey

COURSE DESCRIPTION & OVERALL GOAL

This conference will provide updates of current diagnostic and treatment modalities for TB infection and TB disease, appropriate tests to aid in the diagnosis and management of TB disease, and window prophylaxis for children. The format will include lectures with discussion, and case studies.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

This conference is open to physicians, nurses, and public health professionals who manage patients at risk for or diagnosed with TB infection or disease.

WHY COURSE IS NEEDED

Reducing the burden of TB requires a multidisciplinary approach which relies on knowledge of local epidemiology, populations at risk and successful interventions. This conference will provide updates for treatment options for TB infection and TB disease. It will also promote networking among colleagues, resource sharing and collaborations with partnering agencies.

OBJECTIVES

Upon completion of this conference, participants should be better able to:

- List at least two key trends in tuberculosis incidence, risk factors and disease type in Pennsylvania;
- Implement current recommendations to increase treatment completion among patients with TB infection (TBI)
- Outline the benefits of IGRA testing in relation to identifying and treating TB infection
- Select the diagnostic tests appropriate for screening, diagnosing TB disease and monitoring TB treatment
- Integrate recommendations for prevention and management of TB in children and adolescents
- Explain the implications of travel restrictions and the challenges for TB management and care among mobile populations.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS

In order to meet the learning objectives and receive continuing education credits, participants are required to attend the entire conference and complete an online evaluation. A follow-up evaluation will be sent to participants within 1 month of the conference.
